MR. WILLIS ON "OLD MEN." Mr. Willis in a letter to the Home Journal says, - "Men differ, (if asked at fifty years of age,) as to what has most pleased and flattered them, in life; and I may take the liberty to say, perhaps, (while thus turning over one of the brightest of the gold links in my chain of memories,) that, of all in this world which has seemed to fall naturally to my lot, nothing has lain so sweetly close to the tear- sale. fountain at my beart as the love which I have experienced from old men! It has been neither chance-found nor rare. Years ago I blessed God, that in every land to which I travelled, there awaited me a gray-baired friendship and blessing. The subdued tenderness, the disinterestedness, the wise care and counsel, the cheerfulness with its touch of melanoholy, and the ripe and safe goodness of such friends, made them always seem price less to me-treasures to find, anywhere .-The one whom we have lost from Idlewild was one of these-dear old Friend Sands, the Quaker, whom we found living near us when we came. His white locks, and his worldparified sadness blest smile, are still part of the ballowed presence of the place. We remember and love him in these walks and woods-glorified spirit though he now iswith familiar and unabated affection. I do not know how poetry and philosophy can be blind to the fact, that in such fading evenings of life there glows the dawn of the heaven be- and 6 months. The deferred payments to be youd. Old men seem already angels. I have written what I did not mean to write, in the foregoing sentence or two. Tuning my harp for a glee I have struck a chord that was kept hallowed for a hymn.

LONDON DILAPIDATED. According to the London Times considerable portions of the city are in a state of dilapidation already beyond the power of renovation, except by reconstruction. The Times proposes large expenditures for this purpose. "If thinge go on in the present way we shall soon have to leave off boasting of English comfort. The word will be as inaplicacable to the country as the epithet 'merry' in the old ballads. Here are 3,000,000 of us living in London in a manner which is every day becoming more and more unbearable. Foreigners have always been disappointed in London, but now-a-lays they are astonished, not to say disgusted. No doubt some improvements have been made; new districts have arisen, better built and better drained than the old, but they are at the extremities, and London proper is becoming more foul SHOP FURNITURE of the said Stone, at No. and didgy and dilapidated and stinking every day. The Parisian, the Viennese, the New Yorker is surprised at the meanness of the houses, the closeness and smallness of the shops, and the general slovenliness and | jy 7-dts want of care which meet the eye on every side. The Londoner seems to have no idea of pulling down a house. Whether from want of enterprise or from a bad system of tenure, vast districts in the most advantageous situations are covered with worthless houses, which are allowed to stand and become worse and worse yearly, until they tumble down or otherwise cease to be habita-

THE NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In one of M. Brown Sequard's lectures he exhibited guines-pigs which had been experimented on some months ago by cutting certain nerves; the hinder limbs became paralyzed, but in time the animals recovered the power of voluntary motion, attended, bowever, with and if that spot is irritated a fit is the immediate consequence. Another noticeable particular is that the lice which infest the animals congregate on that spot and nowhere else. Whether it be that there is more warmth or more perspiration than on other part of the body, is not known; at any rate, physiologists are agreed as to the singular and suggestive nature of the phenomenon. It appears, moreover, that if the sensibility of the sensitive spot be destroyed, then the guinea-pig ceases to be liable to epilepsy. Applying this fact to human physiology, M. Brown Sequard says that there is in the human body s spot, discoverable, as he believes by galvanism, which, if deprived of its sensibility, would, in like manner, completely prevent attacks of epilepsy.
